Leading Korean IT firm uses looksoftware products to modernize local ERP application and provide integration services

Melbourne, Australia 18 September, 2003 - looksoftware, the creators of newlook and centric, announce the appointment of Entos Information Systems to resell its dynamic refacing and enterprise integration solutions.

Entos Information Systems based in Changwon, South Korea (www.entos.co.kr) is an Independent Solutions Vendor (ISV), developers of the Korean government award winning S-Plus ERP application. The company has extensive expertise in application development and integration. More than 50 leading manufacturers currently use their software including STX Corporation and Enpaco.

Soeng Bo Cho, President of Entos said "Our customers not only need to modernize their applications but integrate existing applications using a proven solution like newlook and centric. newlook provides rapid dynamic refacing while centric provides the easy-to-use application integration solution for our S-Plus ERP iSeries customers. It is a perfect fit for us in Korea".

Marcus Dee, Director of looksoftware said "Entos is a well known and respected iSeries focused organization who now play a strategic role in our growth plans for the Asia Pacific region".

looksoftware's success to date is due to productivity and ease-of-use resulting from its dynamic environment. centric and newlook share looksoftware's dynamic environment, allowing applications to be refaced, extended and integrated without importing, converting, collecting or any other batch based process.

looksoftware headquartered in Melbourne, Australia is an IBM business partner providing easy-to-use, powerful tools to web-enable, extend and integrate legacy applications. With over 1000 customers in 35 countries, our distribution network includes 100 resellers and ISV Partners.
